And welcome to Federation Without Television's Monarchy Word Association. Psychotherapy has become very popular since the days of Sigmund Freud. Many propose that it is a great way to examine the human psyche. Indeed, there are its critics.

Even board games have utilized the technique of psychotherapy. Back in the day, one of my favorite board games was Therapy. This game was interesting to me, because I was very intrigued by psychotherapy. Instrumental to psychotherapy is a technique known as word association [some say]. Word association supposedly allows a person to develop their view of the world [psychologists say]. The way a person reacts to words helps describe their psychological situation [psychologists say].

Some say word association has little if any validity. Others say it's a very potent force to interpret the subconscious. I believe it is very neat. Today we will use it in a very innovative fashion.

Monarchy is an often vilified idea. People don't hold monarchy in high regard. It is no longer popular in society. There is no neo-monarchist groups. It has made a fall. Worldwide.

In order to examine the relation of monarchy to people's subconscious, their psyche, we will do word association with some different characters.

The first character is Luke.:

Hello, Luke.

Hello. How do you do, Luke?

I'm fine. Are you ready?

Are you ready, Luke?

I sure am. Do you need an explanation?

I don't think it's efficient. For me to have an explanation, because I know what you're going to do. That will work quite well.

I will say a word and you say what comes to mind:

- Monarchy.
- Kings.
- Kaiser.
- Bread.
- Earl.
- Duke of Earl's song.

- Is that good or bad? Depends. Do you consider the mainstream of society to be good or do you consider it to be bad? Thank you for participating.

Our next patient is Sheila.

Sheila, now is the time for diagnosis. My professional diagnosis is that you are a full-fledged monarchist. In a pastlife, you were very loyal. You're very loyal. Follower of the royal family. You want our nation to be a monarchy. That's very, very, very true. You're smart. That's what training leads to. Monarchy makes you happy. Go ahead and help spread the monarchist movement. This nation.

Our next person is Lou.

- Sup Lou? Lou!
- How do you do Lou?
- I do good!
- Are you ready, Lou?
- I sure am ready.
- I will throw them at you.
- That is my fun:

Inglers.

I do not need to go any further Lou. Because the diagnosis is very clear. We can use our time more productively. I determine you are a bona fide game banger. That's true. Game banger is good. It's not good for society. It's not good for society. We don't need games. Come stay. We need kings and queens. That would be far better than games. We really do not need games. Games are an academic problem in this nation. We don't need games. Is that clear? I don't like what you're talking about. Your talk stinks. You can have your opinion and I can have mine.

- Meet the next person in town.
- I'm in.
- Hello. Amanda.
- Hello.
- How do you do?
- I do fine.
- I will throw words at you:

King.

Beer.

Queen.

Jester.

Duke.

Earl.

Imperial.

Beer.

I see a very strict theme. You are an alcoholic. You need treatment. Beer is the only thought on your mind. This is a serious problem. It would be better for you and

If you joined the monarchist movement for society, you joined the monarchy movement. Monarchy, the great alternative.

- Our next subject is King Blasso of the North Pole.
- Are you ready, King?
- I am.
Monarch.
- Nay.
- Santa Claus.

- Queen.
- Guard.

- Imperial rule.
- Reign.

- All your glory.
- Royalty.
- Fire.
- And clear.
-
- Fantastic.
- My diagnosis is you are a monarch of the North Pole.
- You are very proud of yourself.
- You have good self-esteem.
- You enjoy yourself.
- Our citizens of the North Pole obey you.
- The North Pole is a very happy place.
- We need more monarchy.
- When the world becomes entirely monarchistic, the North Pole will have a prime place.
-
- Lucifer, you're next.
- Yee-haw, Lucifer.
- How are you doing, Lucifer?
- Good here.
- I won't give you an explanation because you know.
-
- Kaiser.
- Evil.
- Satan.
- Okay.
- Hello.
- Hello. I'm good.
- I'm good.
- My diagnosis is that you are a very good servant. You would make the hardcore Satanist very proud. Anton LaVey did you. Satanism does not make the world a better place. Monarchy is what monarchy teaches. Try to promote and to encourage people to develop themselves. Satanism hates people. Monarchy loves people. It wants people. People are happy. I want people to be their very best. I hope you understand this. I really hope you understand.
- Our next person is named person.
- Hello, person.
Hello. I say a word, you say what the first word comes to mind. Got it? Good.
Imperial.

Abdicate.

Throne.

You do not seem to have a very critical mind to me. You merely parrot what I say. This is not good. Not good one single bit. It is a mistake to behave in that fashion. You're not advancing the cause of market [since some like Reason Magazine say "Free Minds, Free Markets". You are hindering its growth. You're stifling its fulfillment. You are impeding upon its progress. This is not good for a market movement. This is not very good. You need a change. You need to see a different light. View all the colors. And you will not be doing this by using LSD. You will become enlightened.
